On #NASHDAY 2021, Global Liver Institute convened 120 partners, registrants from 73 countries, and 33 remarkable international speakers to declare the urgency of combating the parallel epidemics of NASH and COVID-19.

Global Liver Institute's International NASH Day 2021 was virtual for the second year in a row due to COVID-19 restrictions. However, the virtual nature did not inhibit and perhaps even facilitated the most engaging International NASH Day yet, convening 120 IND partners, registrants from 73 countries, and 33 remarkable international speakers to declare the urgency of combating the parallel epidemics of NASH and COVID-19.

Eight expert panel discussions, broadcast in five languages, aired to optimize multiple time zones in the United States, Canada, Europe, the Middle East, Asia and South America, and related special events, ensured focus and solidarity worldwide to fight nonalcoholic steatohepatitis, or NASH, the advanced form of chronic, progressive fatty liver disease. The broad reach was appropriate, as NASH affects more than 115 million people worldwide and is expected to double by 2030. The precursor to NASH, non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD), is even more common. These serious conditions demand awareness, diagnosis, and action. If left unchecked, they can lead to liver failure and even death.

Again this year, International NASH Day (IND) was endorsed by the major hepatology organizations in the United States and Europe: the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases (AASLD) and the European Association for the Study of the Liver (EASL). In addition to these organizations, IND 2021 was also endorsed by the Asian Pacific Association for the Study of the Liver (APASL), the Asociación Latinoamericana para el Estudio del Hígado (ALEH), and 13 other important scientific international and national organizations (full list below).

For the first time, Global Liver Institute (GLI) welcomed the participation of the World Health Organization (WHO). Kremlin Wickramasinghe, programme manager for Nutrition, Physical Activity and Obesity, at the WHO Regional Office for Europe, recorded a video call to action on NASH and participated in the panel discussion, "NASH as a Global Public Health Challenge."

Another first was working with the Association of Black Gastroenterologists and Hepatologists on IND. The collaboration marks the critical need to speak out against and correct health inequities in the U.S. healthcare system related liver diseases and all other maladies. The special panel reflects GLI's commitment to work with partners in every relevant field to close the research, care access, and ultimately outcomes gaps for traditionally underserved populations.

The IND 2021 social media campaign started on June 2 and culminated June 10, with the airing of the eight cutting edge, multi-platform virtual panels featuring international, well-known clinical, research, and patient experts on liver disease, immunology, nutrition, transplantation, oncology, and public health. They highlighted current challenges and collaborated on innovative cross-disciplinary solutions to improve the lives of people living with NAFLD, NASH and comorbidities.

Partners created and spread messages on social media and produced videos to show their commitment to fighting NASH in their communities. GLI compiled the partner contributions into a NASH Around the World video. Partners also held complementary panels, in-person NASH-dedicated events, and educational workshops in the days surrounding June 10.

GLI also held a live culinary event with U.S. celebrity Chef Daniel Thomas, who guided the audience through liver-healthy cooking techniques and tips. The funds raised with this event will help increase the number of grassroots community grants GLI can fund.

In addition, GLI announced a partnership with NutriStyle Inc. to offer a personalized nutrition app to people living with liver disease, diabetes and other chronic conditions or who want to maintain good liver health.

While the world emerges from one phase of the COVID-19 pandemic and fights new variants, GLI will continue to adapt to the times and support liver health and liver patients without interruption. The growth of IND year after year, indicates a global appetite for actionable, timely, research-based liver health information for clinicians and patients. We are grateful for the partners and participants worldwide who made IND 2021 a rousing success and helped GLI forge clear paths for our advocacy work in the year ahead. Thank you.

WHO AND INTERNATIONAL NASH DAY

This year, GLI was honored by the collaboration with the World Health Organization. Kremlin Wickramasinghe, programme manager for Nutrition, Physical Activity and Obesity, from the WHO Regional Office for Europe, recorded a video message inviting engagement with GLI's online events and virtual activities. He also underlined the need for higher awareness of NASH, especially its growing incidence highly correlated to the growing numbers on obesity. Wickramasinghe also participated in the panel, "NASH as a Global Public Health Challenge," with renowned speakers from AASLD, EASL and APASL.

NASH AROUND THE WORLD VIDEO

Like last year, IND 2021 was held on a virtual platform given the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. GLI invited partners to participate in a NASH Around the World video, contributing short videos on how they address NASH in their countries. The response was incredible: GLI received 24 short videos from 20 countries. GLI compiled the varied points of view into a one-hour video, proof that educating communities about NASH takes place in churches, hospitals, schools, and wherever else advocates are able to reach people for this important cause.

NASH VIRTUAL EDUCATIONAL PANELS

OVERVIEW

Global Liver Institute is privileged to lead International NASH Day globally and is committed to its success and the safety and well-being of patients and partners during this pandemic. For this reason, this year, as with last year, GLI used a virtual format, shaping it as a virtual multi-platform experience to increase awareness about nonalcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD), nonalcoholic steatohepatitis (NASH) and the actions people can take to prevent and treat these diseases globally.

On June 10, GLI hosted eight live virtual educational panels featuring well-known international, clinical, research, and patient experts in liver disease, immunology, nutrition, transplantation, oncology, and public health. Panels were available with live simultaneous broadcast in five languages—English, Spanish, French, Mandarin and Hindi—for a broad worldwide audience to build awareness of and spark action to prevent NASH. The recordings of all the eight panels translated in the above mentioned five different languages, are now available on GLI's YouTube channel.

EDUCATIONAL MATERIALS

During International NASH Day, GLI released two new educational brochures: NASH & Diabetes and NASH in Lean Individuals.

These brochures are designed to educate patients, their families and communities about NAFLD/NASH. The first brochure underlines the high correlation between diabetes and NASH and increasing health risks if these comorbidities are left untreated. The second brochure analyzes NASH in cases not linked to obesity.

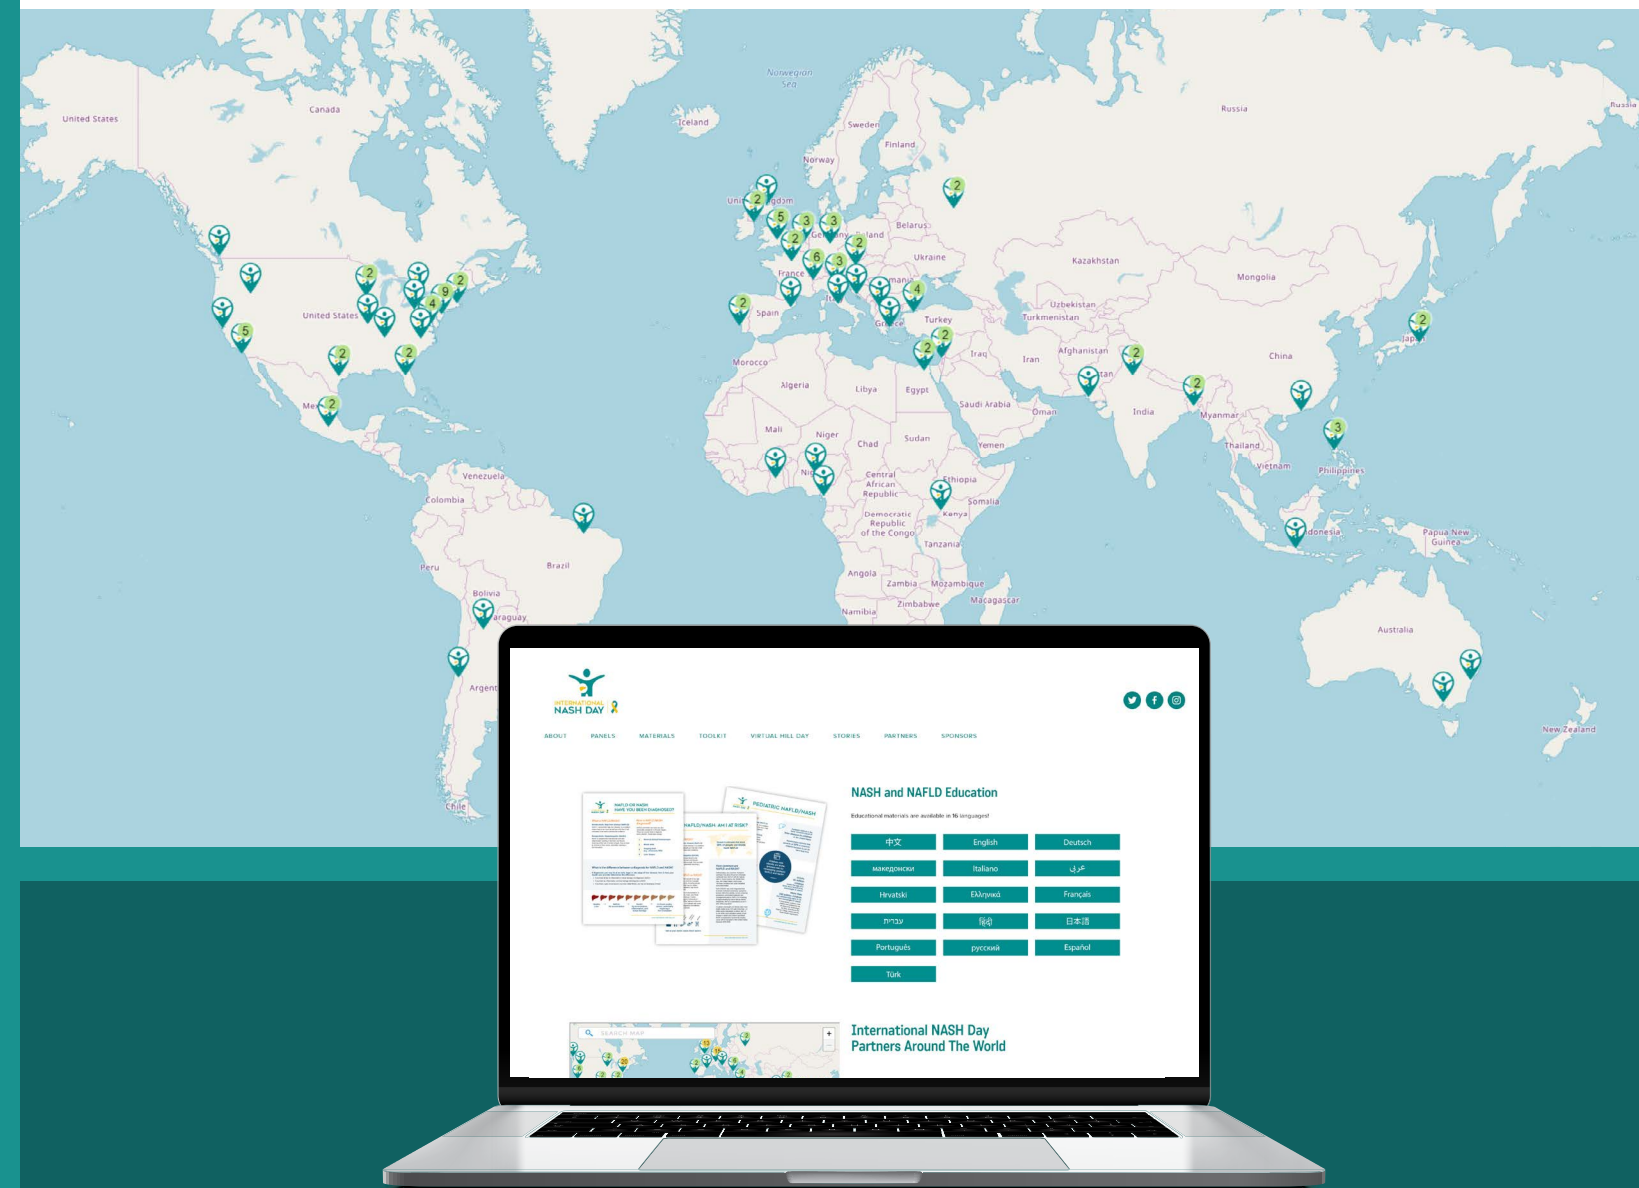

As NAFLD/NASH are progressive, chronic, life-threatening, and global diseases, these brochures are available for patients and stakeholders throughout the world in 16 different languages: Arabic, Chinese, Croatian, English, French, German, Greek, Hebrew, Hindi, Italian, Japanese, Macedonian, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, and Turkish.

WEBSITE

Visit the Global Liver Institute International NASH Day website at WWW.INTERNATIONAL-NASH-DAY.COM and discover our NASH-centered digital world.

The website includes a world map with IND partners' events, the eight NASH-dedicated educational panel video recordings, an endorsing video from the biggest liver societies in the world, the NASH Around the World video, patient brochures available in 16 languages, and more.

SOCIAL MEDIA TOOLKIT

Global Liver Institute, to stimulate the circulation of important information and engaging discussions on #NASHDAY, created a digital toolkit for social media:

VIRTUAL CAPITOL HILL DAY

GLOBAL LIVER INSTITUTE'S VIRTUAL CAPITOL HILL DAY FOR INTERNATIONAL NASH DAY WAS A HUGE SUCCESS.

Global Liver Institute's Virtual Capitol Hill Day for International NASH Day 2021 was the culmination of months of research, advocating, coalition-building and convening to connect the liver health advocacy community with key legislators and staff on NASH health policy. Working with GLI's Liver Action Network (LAN), advocates were able to show U.S. federal legislators the groundswell of support across the United States for fighting NASH and NAFLD.

The Virtual Capitol Hill Day provided an empowering opportunity for more than 30 NASH patients, health care providers, and clinicians to engage in the process of representative government and increase awareness for NASH and GLI's NASH policy priorities, including the reintroduction of the NASH Care Act, in the U.S. Congress. Advocates virtually shared their lived experiences and knowledge in discussion with more than 20 congressional offices.

The NASH Care Act would act as a first step by the U.S. federal government to prevent, survey, and address NAFLD, NASH and interrelated conditions. Congressman Dan Crenshaw (TX-02) and Congressman Raul Ruiz (CA-36) originally introduced the Nonalcoholic Steatohepatitis (NASH) Care Act of 2020, H.R. 8658, in October 2020. GLI looks forward to continuing to collaborate with both congressional offices as the NASH Care Act nears its reintroduction.

CULINARY EVENT

International NASH Day 2021 featured the first-ever culinary demonstration on liver-healthy cooking techniques and tips. Celebrity chef Daniel Thomas, who has cooked for U.S. presidents and members of Congress, appeared virtually on camera with GLI CEO Donna Cryer to cook kale soup and crab quesadillas from their respective kitchens. Guests cooked at home, having received the fresh ingredient kits and recipe cards by mail. The event was a fund-raiser to support GLI's programs. GLI is grateful for the participation of our allies who embrace cooking and dining for liver health.
